ECONOMIC

NEW SOVIET RUBLE'S OFFICIAL PARITY STILL UNDECIDED -- Moscow, Den'gi i Kredit, No 6, Jun 60, p 6

CPYRGHT

The Ministry of Finance USSR, Gosplan USSR, and Gosbank USSR must prepare recommendations concerning the establishment of the new value of the ruble relative to foreign currencies and increasing its gold content. The indebtedness of foreign states for credits extended by the USSR will be recalculated in accordance with the new ruble exchange rate.

[Comment: This statement, appearing in the official organ of the State Bank USSR, seems to indicate that the international economic effect of the scheduled monetary reform had not been fully worked out at the time of its announcement by Khrushchev and that probably much work remains to be done by the three organizations mentioned. That the new official rate of exchange will bear little relations to the 10 to 1 rate stipulated for conversion within the USSR is generally conceded by Western economists.]
